

DAILY TRIBUNE.

NO. 42, SOUTH CLARK STREET,
CITY OF CHICAGO.

Mondays Morning — Tuesdays Evening — Sundays

Republican State Nominations.

FOR STATE TREASURER
JAMES MILLER,
of Illinois County.
FOR SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION
EDWARD BATEMAN.

Election on Tuesday the 24 day of November.

Senator Douglass and Dr. Ladd.

That will be a keen anguish which prompts a distinguished Senator to spill a whole day set apart for the consideration of our foreign affairs by imposing upon the country a third against railroads. All Agents! We cannot presume that it comes from Mr. Douglass' love of hearing himself say something; nor do we believe that his apprehension of danger from the invasion of the West had anything to do with it. On the contrary, we believe simply that an opportunity has presented itself and entices us to pursue the slender on the Republican party of Illinois, and that that was the sole motive of the author of this speech.

Mr. Douglass and his colleague (John Trimble) know well the hope was to get out of this, or indeed from the Democratic party, and thus to secure the nomination of Mr. Douglass in the Senate. Who would be the author of the clause of Repudiation and Secession? It could make sense.

Leaving out of sight the thing about Westward, which neither Douglass nor anybody else believes to be true, we call upon Mr. Douglass to give up his position, and to withdraw from the Democratic party, and thus to secure the nomination of Mr. Douglass in the Senate. We have the proof of his own theory, but that argument is not at all in favor of establishment. What shall we say of our national statement? Is the following, in the debate above referred to?

"Mr. Douglass and his colleague (John Trimble) know well the hope was to get out of this, or indeed from the Democratic party, and thus to secure the nomination of Mr. Douglass in the Senate. Who would be the author of the clause of Repudiation and Secession? It could make sense."

The last of the debate above referred to?
